CITY TRUSTEES.

All the members of the Board were present. Demand of F. R. Sinclair, street superintendent, for salary and incidentals for month ending March 17, amounting to $81.05, demand of E. R. Tarling for the sum of $9.45 commission on license collections, and demand of Frederick Baker, city attorney, for $60 in payment of salary and for typewriting, were presented and approved.

Demand of Riggs & Sherer for $123.64 previously referred to finance committee, was reported back favorably by committee. In part payment of the same a warrant was issued for $90.57, and payment of the balance of the demand which covered the printing of the bond ordinance, was ordered deferred to be payable out of the proceeds of the bond sale.

A communication from Mr. Edgar W. Pack, requesting that an electric light be placed at the intersection of C and Second streets, the property owners to pay one-half of the expense of the same, the other half payable by the city, was read and placed on file.

A communication was read from the Merchants Association regarding night watchman, and was referred to the police and sanitary committee to be taken up with the city attorney.

The city attorney reported that he had taken up the matter of delinquent licenses with Mr. Overton, who had objected to payment of the license imposed upon dealers in real estate, and had granted that gentleman an extension of time until the next meeting of the Board, to determine his action. The city attorney recommended that Mr. L. H. Hurtt's license be cancelled, as that gentleman is not handling realty on commission. He also reported that the contract with the Electric Light and Power Company which had been referred to him for examination, was not satisfactory and that a new contract had been submitted to the representative of the electric company. The proposed contract was then read.

On motion Ordinance No. — amending an ordinance entitled "An ordinance regulating the construction, altering, repairing and remaking of buildings in the City of Glendale, etc." being ordinance No. 42, by amending Section One thereof, was taken up and passed to third reading.

Ordinance No. 43 providing for the issuing of bonds of the City of Glendale in the sum of $5,000 for the purchase of fire apparatus, was taken up, read and adopted.

Action in regard to map of the Geo. B. Edwards tract, was deferred for one week.

Adjourned.

ROADS AND STREETS.

The Board of Trade has appointed a committee on Good Roads which will work in conjunction with the Los Angeles organization to further this most worthy object. But this organization will work for the interests of the roads outside of incorporated towns. What Glendale needs just now is a general move all along the line to improve the streets of our municipality. The work is well begun on Fourth street and Glendale avenue, but it ought to be pushed in other directions more rapidly than is being done. We understand that the property owners on Fifth street are ready to improve that fine thoroughfare from Brand boulevard to Verdugo road, but it seems that no one is making a business of pushing the matter through. Fourth street should be taken hold of with the idea of improving it by sidewalking and asphalting all the way to Verdugo road. The portion of this street as far east as A street is to be sidewalked, curbed and oiled just as soon as the work can be done, but we do not see how the people on the East side of the city can afford to let the remainder of the street as far as Verdugo road, remain in its present condition. It is not a question concerning the property owners and residents of that street merely. It is of particular importance to every one interested in that section of Glendale along Verdugo road and vicinity, to have one or more good streets connecting that neighborhood with the railroad on Brand boulevard and the town center on Glendale avenue. An attractive street between two points is the best annihilator of distance between them, aside from some actual means of locomotion. If this street is not improved east of A street to conform with the improvements on the West end, there should be something taken from the General fund as soon as available, for the purpose of filling in the roadway just east of A, which is overflowed and made nearly impassable during a rain storm, and remains very muddy for some days afterwards. As we are making a point of there being "no mud in Glendale" this should be remedied quickly.

We hope that property owners along other streets will take hold earnestly of this subject, and get their streets improved at once, so that the whole community may receive credit in the judgment of outsiders for being progressive and content with nothing less than the best.

Mr. William Gaylor who bought the Glendale Encinal from the Wheeler brothers, years ago here, and ran it for a year or so, was in Glendale last Monday looking up the old-timers. He had not seen Glendale for ten years and was properly astonished at the changes noticeable.

Mr. Gaylor is now located at Long Beach, which he thinks is a lively town, but he believes that Glendale is making, proportionately, a greater growth.

MASONIC "JOLLY UP."

Saturday evening last in their hall at the corner of Fourth and Brand boulevard the Masonic Lodge held the first of a series of "talking bees." A short, juicy program of music and readings was the opening feature. In this part the Masonic quartet, one of the newest musical organizations in the Valley, held the center of the stage with M. Zinger Remsburg, the king of joshers, a close second.

Part II consisted of spontaneous outbursts of oratory from members and visitors.

Part III intensely interesting from the standpoint of those participating, was the feed. It was in this part that Dr. Chase and Alphonse Tower held the audience spellbound by their numerous applications for the inner man. They are now considered the leading caterers in Glendale.

Part IV. The usual after-dinner gems were dispensed until Bro. Knights of Tropico thought he had had enough. The purpose of the affair was to get the men better acquainted with each other and it certainly did. About 75 members and visiting Masons were present.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING.

The wet weather of the past week has interfered somewhat with operations both in the sale of lots and in building. But the conditions are very satisfactory and March promises to be the banner month for new buildings of which about a dozen have actually been begun and contracted for since the first of the month. On Brand boulevard the work on the new club house and new brick block, is proceeding rapidly. On the corner of Second street and the Boulevard, Mr. Holme is beginning the erection of a modern seven or eight room house and Mr. Cole is starting another in the same neighborhood of about the same style. At Lomita Park, Mr. W. C. Stone, the Los Angeles theatrical costumer, has begun work on a story and a half cottage on the lot back of the packing house. The plans indicate that the building will cost about $3,000. Messrs Clark and Howard are doing the work.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The next meeting of this club on Tuesday the 26th will be one of unusual interest. Mrs. Corella Phipps, for a long time resident in the City of Mexico, will address the club and its guests upon the subject of Domestic Life of the Mexican people. Her talk will be illustrated by models, etc. The music will consist of selections from the music of Mexico. The young ladies in Mexican costumes will serve Mexican refreshments and everything will be in harmony with the subject of the day. In order that all who desire to attend may feel free to come, there will be a charge of ten cents admission for non-members. The club will meet for the afternoon in the I. O. O. F. hall over the Glendale Grocery.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The State library (of fifty books) will be returned to Sacramento this week, and the new books to replace them, may be looked for soon. Due notice will be given of their arrival. Public interest in the library continues to grow as is shown by increasing patronage. The stock of periodicals kept on hand is an excellent one, as the contributions in this line have been very liberal. The patrons of the library can find a great deal of interest and much that is instructive on the shelves and tables even without the books loaned by the state.

The pamphlet made up by the Glendale Improvement Society about three years ago, is still doing good work. We notice that the most of its contents are used by Mr. Ezra Parker in the folder that he has just put out. With the addition of Mr. Parker's picture and the "poetry" from the Los Angeles Times it makes an attractive publication.

Bernard Shaw breaks forth in the New York World to inquire: "What can you expect of people who reject me"!

Oh Bernard!

Oh (p)Shaw!

The Psalmist exclaimed: "Oh that mine enemy would write a book." But that was something like three thousand years ago; today he would say: "Oh that he would edit a newspaper"!

The General Education Board

This Board upon which devolves the expenditure of the immense sum of money given to it by Rockefeller and others, amounting so far to about $43,000,000, yielding an annual income of about $2,500,000, consists of fifteen men, selected from different professions and callings. There are five hundred colleges and universities that are eligible for aid from this Board. One of the conditions necessary to be complied with upon the part of the recipient of this aid is, that the amount contributed shall be at least duplicated from other sources.

The whole scheme of this particular philanthropy seems to be modeled on the trust basis, and promises to result in a chain of educational institutions throughout the country, all under one central control and a tremendous power for good or evil.

"O. M."—Order of Merit

Not many Americans ever heard of this comparatively new order created by the King of England in 1902, the conferring of which upon any person is considered one of the highest possible honors that any ruler can bestow. The title has thus far been bestowed upon only nineteen men, one of whom is that illustrious Englishman recently received in Washington as ambassador from Great Britain, the Hon. James Bryce, who declined to accept the honor of being raised to the peerage. Among those upon whom the title has been bestowed are Lords Roberts, Wolseley and Kitchener; Lord Kelvin, the Earl of Cromer, John Morley, Sir Lawrence Alma Tadema, George Meredith, and the three Japanese: Field Marshal Yamagata, Field Marshal Oyama and Admiral Togo.

The Recrudescence of Denis Kearney

We did not think him dead, that picturesque humbug of the San Francisco sandlots, the leader of the anti-Chinese crusade of a quarter of a century ago, but we did think that he had lost the power, or the desire, to get his name again into the newspapers and achieve the notoriety of even casual mention in the history of the day.

But Denis Kearney has burst his cerements, and as from the tombs the people of the Pacific coast may hearken if they will to the voice of dreadful warning which comes rumbling up from the catacombs of somewhere in San Francisco, as to the dire results of unchecked Japanese immigration!

Denis was a drayman, until he joined the prophets, and then it was found one day that he was a leader of men. When not denouncing the Chinese, he was wont to amuse himself in anathematizing the railroads. He became a power in the land, almost a public terror; by a very slight margin he missed landing in the governor's chair, and then as suddenly as his star shot above the horizon, it set and disappeared from the gaze of men. Rumor persistently told us that the railroad people had need of Denis, found his price and paid it. And we always have felt that the persecuted railroad company had done a good thing, for Denis pulled upon the appetite when we had him for daily fare upon the journalistic table.

That unkind fate has brought him to the surface again, seems uncanny and needless; but who shall question the ways of fate! San Francisco has Reuf and Schmitz, et al., and why not Kearney?

Longfellow

The centennial celebration of Longfellow's birth brought out some interesting expressions from the critics, on both the man and the poet. One of these critics is a gentleman named Gribble, and his criticism of the poet and his works is interesting, at least. He writes: "A poet of the first rank, Longfellow obviously was not and, for obvious reasons, could not have been . . . . His very virtues stood in the way. The great poets have either lived in revolt, like Byron and Shelley, or else they have lived in seclusion, like Wordsworth. Longfellow did neither of these things, but adopted a conventional middle course." He calls Longfellow "the poet of the obvious and the humdrum," and says that "His limitations as a poet are precisely the limitations of the man who is perpetually seeking edification from the pulpit." He finds fault with the poet for being a regular church attendant, and seems to hold that fact responsible for his limitations.

It is curious to find this critic classing Wordsworth with Byron and Shelley, and yet not admitting Longfellow into the same class. Had he excluded Wordsworth from the "poets of the first rank," it would have been easier to arrive at his point of view.

It is evident to any one familiar with the story of their lives and the quality of their work, that Longfellow is not in the same class as Byron and Shelley; but it is equally apparent that Wordsworth is also apart from them, unless it is in the fact that like them, he was not a regular attendant at church!

If really seems evident that Mr. Gribble believes that church going is death to poets of the first class; or rather that poets attain to the first class because they do not attend church!

It seems logical to infer that Mr. Gribble would have poets live in revolt or in seclusion, on peril of not attaining to the first rank! The fact that poets of this class are so scarce at present, may be accounted for possibly on the Gribble hypothesis that they have all gone into seclusion!

Dare we hope that they will presently "revolt" and burst into the literary arena with some of that long-felt-want, first-class poetry according to Gribble?

THE STUDENTS' CORNER.

We have such an interesting article on color this week, that we shall leave the subject of astronomy until our next issue. Our object is not to cater to the class of readers who are already well informed upon scientific subjects, but rather to that much larger class, older as well as young, whose thoughts have not been turned in this direction sufficiently to have mastered the primary principles of the every-day facts of science.

Color.

"All colors are alike in the dark," says an old proverb, and there is more truth in it than at first appears, for in the absence of light there is positively no color at all. Examine a beautiful red rose, or any other splendidly colored flower: You very naturally think the color an inherent quality of the petals, which they retain under all circumstances. Such, however, is not the case. In common with every other object of nature, in themselves they are absolutely colorless.

That this is true, may be proved by any person, by a simple, but striking experiment. In a dark room, collect a number of brilliantly colored articles—flowers, pictures, fabrics—anything with bright colors. Then enter the room with a colored lantern—red, blue, yellow, any color, it matters not. All the brilliantly colored articles will appear one neutral tint—no color at all. Make a close inspection and satisfy yourself that such is really the case. Then admit the ordinary white light of a lamp—electric if possible—or better still the glorious light of day, and notice how the beautiful colors seem to start out in all their radiance. Whence is this marvelous difference? It is caused by the fact that the colors do not exist in the articles, but in the white light, which, however, the articles have the wonderful power of decomposing into its constituent colored rays.

The phenomenon of color is therefore due to the property possessed by all matter, of dissolving white light into its component rays, absorbing some and reflecting some. Thus: an object appears red because it absorbs all the rays but the red, which it reflects; and similarly all objects exhibit the particular color which they have the power of reflecting only. There are obviously two exceptions to this rule, white and black objects. An object appears white, because it reflects all the rays intact, and an object appears black because it absorbs them all, and reflects none. Sunlight is, of course, the best for exhibiting color in all its purity; next best is electric light. Gas, kerosene, and candle light are all inferior for the purpose, as you may have noticed if you have ever had to match any colored article by any of these artificial lights.

The immortal Newton discovered about 200 years ago, that light, when passing from one medium to another of different density, becomes deflected from its straight course. This is known as refraction, but the bending is unequal, the blue rays being most bent of all, the red least, and all the others in between these two extremes. This is easily shown by the simple experiment with the prism and ray of light admitted through a slit. In the rainbow, the drops of rain perform the same operation as the prism. The beautiful color effects sometimes exhibited by sunrise and sunset, are caused by the sun being near the horizon, the sunlight having to come to us through a long range of atmosphere of many different densities, and being split up into brilliant hues of all the colors, according to the different degrees of refrangibility which belong to them.

All these facts afford some feeble indication of the manifold advantages we possess in living in a universe lit by polychromatic light, instead of by light which is merely blue, red or yellow, or any other single color.

The Eighth Grade has had the addition of two new members, Myrth and Emma Pulliam, who reside at the corner of Third and A streets.

The Normal School

Several towns outside of Los Angeles have made offers of a site for the school, but none of them seem liberal in comparison with that made by Covina, which offers either a thirty or a forty acre tract free. Pasadena, Hollywood, Santa Monica, Venice, Boyle Heights and Garvanza are figuring on propositions of various kinds. Glendale has not yet got its offer in proper shape for a definite proposal, but the committee is hard at work and hopes to get into the running.

The Shriners

A committee has been at work for several days circulating subscription papers for the purpose of raising money to entertain the Shriners about May 5th or 6th. It is proposed to furnish the visitors entertainment for the inner man and to show them the valley. We hope that Glendale will be put on this list, as they are a class of people whom it is most desirable to become acquainted with. The money devoted to this purpose will be the best investment in advertising that we can possibly make.

LA CRESCENTA.

Mr. Theodore Pickens, who was perhaps the first American settler in the valley, has recently sold his ranch and gone to the mines.

Mrs. Allison Aylesworth and Mrs. S. Merrill, Jr., attended last Saturday's matinee at the Auditorium.

Fire Ranger Philip Begue, Graham and White have just completed the fire break along the south bounds of the Merrill ranch.

Mrs. Klitten sent out invitations for a card party Thursday evening.

The victims of last week's accident are reported doing well.

Halcyon Club

The members of the Halcyon Club one of the most popular clubs of Glendale, were most charmingly entertained by Miss Ethel Hume Flood and Miss Norah Warner, at the beautiful home of Mrs. M. Ogden Ryan, on Fifth street, Saturday evening. The several rooms where the guests were so delightfully entertained, were most artistically decorated in daintily arranged clusters of the pretty single Cherokee rose; candles in quaint oddly fashioned candelabra shed a soft, mellow glow over the very pretty scene. At the close of a very spirited game of whist, dainty refreshments served by Miss Evelyn Ryan assisted by Miss Bernice Williams.

The session of the lodge of the Fraternal Brotherhood, at its regular meeting on Friday of last week, at Masonic Hall, was principally given over to an informal reception to Mr. and Mrs. Warren Benson, newly married members of the lodge. They were presented by the lodge with a fine piece of furniture in the shape of an extension table. The presentation speech was made by Mr. Sherer and happily responded to by the happy bridegroom. A sumptuous luncheon was indulged in and the affair was a very pleasant one for all concerned.

Mrs. F. Gilman Taylor has returned from a business trip to Ventura. Mrs. Taylor reports that she is more and more impressed every time she visits our neighboring county and the ancient town of "San Buena Ventura," with their immense natural advantages and the comparatively little development of same, that has been made thus far. She visited the nurseries established by Mrs. Theodora Shepherd, who before her death last fall, had made them famous as the scene of her successful experiments in the realm of nature, doing much of the same work for the benefit of the world in the development of new varieties of flowers, that Luther Burbank is doing among the fruits. Mrs. Ezra F. Parker accompanied Mrs. Taylor on her trip.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES.

Rev. Geo. R. Graff, A. M., will preach Sabbath eve. The pastor will give the sermon in the morning on the subject of the Great Commandment and how to keep it.

On Easter Sunday Rev. W. S. Blackburn will present the sermon at 11 o'clock and the young people will render a program in the evening assisted by the choir.

Prof. Rickard of Los Angeles has been secured as music director and is showing himself as thoroughly competent to do the work. His solo Sabbath evening was much enjoyed by all. Under his direction this part of the worship will be greatly inspired.

The choir does excellently. The W. H. M. S. held their first regular meeting on Tuesday which was well attended. In the absence of the president and vice president, Mrs. Ferguson was elected to fill the chair. Nearly $400 has been given here to aid the work of this society for this year.

The Sabbath school was large in attendance last Sabbath. With T. W. Watson as superintendent and Miss Hendershott as assistant the work is being well done.

Miss Ann Grant led the League service on Sabbath evening in a way that was real helpful to all. More should attend. The time of the meeting is 6:30 p. m. Preaching 11 and 7:30. You are requested to come and take some part in the services.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Miss Flood was with her mother in Pomona Saturday and Sunday.

Albert Cornwall has taken out a lease of absence this week on account of illness.

Mr. Tower will take the Physical Geography class to Rubio canyon Saturday for a field trip.

Earl G. Chandler, representing Cunningham, Curtis, Welch & Co., called at the high school Tuesday.

The boys' second team will play the Tropico grammar school basket ball five Friday at Glendale.

Marjorie Nicholson of the ninth year class has stopped her school work and will move with her parents to Chico, Cal.

Next Tuesday evening, March 26, in the High School auditorium the Clare Vaughn Wales' concert and comedy company will present a high class program of readings and music. The entertainment is good enough to please the most fastidious. Admittance, 25 cents. Seats free.

With their usual luck the girls' basket ball team lost to Compton by two points. The game was fast and scrappy throughout. Compton was a little inclined to be rough and a large number of fouls was the result. The Glendale line-up was the regular team except Winnie Sadler at forward in Anne Grant's place, Miss Grant having been out of school the past week. Miss Sadler did good work and will strengthen the team. The last league game will be with Long Beach Saturday, March 30.

Taylor's Travelogue

Odd Fellows' hall was crowded last Tuesday evening to hear the illustrated lecture of Mr. W. J. Taylor. Mr. Taylor's talk was interesting and crowded full of instructive facts about the country which formed the subject of his lecture. He began with the landing of passengers at Queenstown, took his audience in fancy from that point over a most interesting route of European travel, visiting Lapland and other northern countries off the beaten tourist track, and illustrating the countries and their people by some excellent stereopticon views; the ceiling of the hall was not high enough, however, to allow of their display to advantage. Mr. Taylor's lecture gave general satisfaction, but the enjoyment of the audience was considerably marred by the frequent interruptions which came from young folks in the audience whose early training had not taught them the courtesy due to others.

Hoodlums

This is a rather harsh term to apply to any of our Glendale young people; but we can only judge them by their actions and not by any opinion which they may have of themselves.

The action of certain young people of both sexes who attended Mr. Taylor's lecture last Tuesday evening in Odd Fellows' hall in persistently interjecting remarks and loud laughter, deserves the severest criticism. They are evidently old enough to know that they have no right to interfere with the enjoyment of others in a public audience, and knowing it, have no excuse for their conduct.

WHEREAS, the Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale, at a regular meeting thereof held on January 30th, 1907, by a vote of two-thirds of all its members duly passed and adopted a resolution determining that the public interest and necessity demanded the acquisition by the said City of a certain municipal improvement, to-wit: the acquisition of fire apparatus; and that the estimated cost of said municipal improvement was Five Thousand Dollars, and that such cost was and will be too great to be paid out of the ordinary annual income and revenue of said City, and

WHEREAS, said resolution was approved by the executive of said City, to-wit: The President of said Board of Trustees, on said 30th day of January, 1907, at said meeting of said board, and was duly published on the 2nd day of February, 1907, in the Glendale News, a weekly newspaper of general circulation, published in the said City of Glendale, and

EAGLE ROCK VALLEY.

The man who doesn't know something about Eagle Rock Valley in these days, argues himself unknown. If he gets anywhere within the sphere of its influence he cannot avoid an accumulation of information in regard to it, unless he is blind or deaf. Certainly he cannot come into contact with the Eagle Rock Railroad, anywhere along the line, without being put in possession of more or less attractive folders in which all the charms of this favored spot are set forth in colors that the blind can see. And it is attractive. A small irregular valley surrounded by high green hills, which one has to ascend but a little way to gain a vantage place from which to look down upon and over the beautiful panorama of valley, sloping green clad hills and the more distant rugged mountains culminating in peaks of snow. Looking out over the scene one of these bright and inspiring spring mornings, the poetry in a man's nature comes to the surface and possesses him. But poetic reflections are likely to be disturbed by the actual facts of the work-a-day world, and the observer must have it borne in upon his consciousness that he is in the midst of a busy scene. Down in the valley and along the base of the hills, there are gangs of men at work with teams, plows and scrapers, barrels of cement and immense piles of sand, shoveling and mixing, digging and driving, pouring moist concrete into forms, and taking them up again, leaving in their wake the finished long sidewalk, the curb and the graded road. The electric railroad comes winding into the valley from the westward, makes a right angled turn toward the rock that gives its name to the valley, and stops. And the cars bring visitors out in batches of a score or more on week days and in greater bunches on Sunday. And a good per centage of these travelers go back with contracts for the sale of real estate, in their pockets. Some of the old places up against the mountains on the north side of the valley, are being opened up by new roads for subdivision purposes: and with their growth of palms and fruit trees and their elevation commanding a splendid outlook, are particularly attractive for villa sites.

On these high hills, above the frost line, the Eagle Rock farmer for years raised great crops of tomatoes in summer and smaller ones in winter; now he raises nothing but prices. There is more doing here than road building and sidewalk making. Within a month past, two groceries have opened up for business where there was none before. At the end of the car line several acres have been graded down and leveled off for the erection of buildings for different business concerns. One of them, a two-story pressed brick structure, is well along in course of construction and as soon as completed the principal room on the lower floor will be occupied by the Bank of Eagle Rock, which is already organized and ready for business. Over near the site of the old school house, near the bend of the road, a fine new school building is being erected, at a cost of ten thousand dollars. A number of new houses have recently been built and plans are being made for several others. The Eagle Rock people appreciate the value of the trolley car and of good roads. They assessed themselves heavily to raise the bonus necessary to secure an electric road, and the money so spent has been returned to them a hundredfold. Now they are planning to make of their beautiful valley an attractive suburb of Los Angeles, and they are working in a generous spirit that deserves success.
